Response:

Our Multi-functional devices and desktop printers are provided via the Home Office and are part of a wider Home Office contract the GLAA has. The GLAA does not hold details of the printer contract or service and are not charged for the provision. We have around 65-70 desktop printer/scanners deployed any one time (our primary requirement being scanning). We have no support contact, but we provide some limited support for these devices ourselves with software drivers provided by Home Office as we are on their infrastructure and to meet their security requirements. You may wish to submit an FOI to the Home Office at foirequests@homeoffice.gov.uk.

The GLAA also has no 'print room' and so do as much internally as possible. We may outsource ad hoc printing requirements, these are normally low levels. We do use a framework agreement for printing of annual report and accounts which is laid in parliament.
